DIARY

UNTIL JULY 13

The Pillowman, Belvoir Street Theatre, Sydney. A writer who specialises in sadistic short stories isn't sure why he is locked up, interrogated and suspected of a spate of child murders in this black comedy.

FROM JULY 3

McReele, Ensemble Theatre, Sydney. His murder conviction quashed, McReele uses his media celebrity to run for the US Senate – but is he innocent?

FROM JULY 5

Don Giovanni, Sydney Opera House. Mozart's darkest and some say greatest opera – his most libidinous libretto, anyway. Also by Opera Australia this month: Otello (from July 18) more or less brings together Verdi and Shakespeare, while Lucia di Lammermoor (from July 30) has soprano Emma Matthews on another sort of moor.

FROM JULY 5

Papunya Painting: Out Of The Desert, Australian Museum,

Adam Wheatley
From July 21

Arthouse Hotel Gallery, Sydney. Some of the most colourful boards ever to hang 10 – or on a pub wall, at least. Semi-surreal imagery evoking summer, dreams and footloose adventure, served up on reclaimed surfboards from artist Adam Wheatley.
